Abstract

Creation has been a reason for respect in the world, and in the present era, research has a status [1,2]. This article is an attempt to explain to researchers and novice students that sometimes researchers ignore trivial things like words and idioms, and as a result of logical thinking and connection, these can do anything. This paper will help researchers [3]. understand a lot in this regard.

Keywords: Critical Thinking, Research, Creation

Introduction: Use of warning by various forms of life is common, for example, different animals, birds, and insects use it for different purposes or to mark their presence/ ownership at different places, the wall is also a sign the beginning of which has been written before human history when the first man was told to eat, drink, and dwell here, meaning to dwell within the boundaries that have been set, the definition of boundaries is directly related to the concept of a wall Because every educated and illiterate person in our new world is well aware of the fact that from where its limits start and where these end, it is as if the so-called free-spirited man of our free world is a prisoner of these invisible walls, the likes of which are unparalleled in the history of mankind [4]. Before I return to the main topic and mention some important walls in the world, I must mention the one from whom man has learned skills and Who has taught man everything. In this regard, I will have to return to the inspiration that is preserved in the world and whose truth is believed by most people in the universe to the point of faith. Language is an ability that humans possess in the world of living beings that makes them stand out and distinguished from other forms of life [5]. Linguists know that this includes proverbs idiom sand other technical matters related to language so , communication is of many types and has different importance in different aspects of life thus, various types of communication methods have been used to alert people to dangerous situations or situations [4,6-9].

In the past few days, I have deliberately written many articles one after the other because, like every writer, I wanted to see how those unfortunate people are those who are throwing their earnings into the hell of artificial intelligence in a crazy way, because I still know some kings whose children are living worse than beggars these days because they were like them Isn't it a scientific truth that man was capable of dominating other beings in the world, and he did it, Now let's look at the title of this article. This idiom has probably been transferred to Urdu from Persian.

In Persian, it is called "راوی دہت شون" But it is not necessary that the word wall originates from Persian. Rather, it is clear from the ancient human religious and factual history of the world that the wall has had a deep relationship with man since its inception, in the context of which some forms of the wall are preserved and exist even today among the most important forms in the world. Such as the holy site of the Western Wall in Israel Some religious thinkers also name this place, the site of Buraq the vehicle that has no known presence in the world and that came to the Prophet from the heavens only in obedience to a command from where the Prophet of Islam, set off on a journey to the sky [10]. Jews still consider it a sacred place where they worship and there are specific ways of worship such as covering the head and wearing clothing for women, including men, that does not reveal any trace of nudity. It is not necessary that the wall is related to religion only; the Great Wall of China is one of the oldest walls in the world that has no deep connection to religion. However, from a security perspective, its construction and existence are historical facts. Another wall was not only related to security, but it is also known in the world as a war memorial, i.e. the Berlin Wall, which was built to divide Germany and Russia into two parts after World War II and was later dismantled. These seem like yesterday's stories.

The Wall Street area in the United States is the heart of business for American business circles, and it has remained so for years. There is no human being in our world and there is no area where there is no house, hut, bungalow, shelter, tent or other such terms and words because since the beginning of man's existence in the world, he has chosen some place to reside, whether it was the top of a tall tree or a cave built in a hill or a safe natural shelter where he could survive and escape from rain, cold and other natural hazards. It is understandable and logical that wherever there is a shelter, there will be a roof, and wherever there is a roof, there will inevitably be the concept of a wall, because without a wall, the concept of a roof is not possible, and without a roof, nothing else is possible to protect against rain, destruction, and sandstorms. The conclusion is clear. As far as writing is concerned, according to experts, there is still a tablet in the world on which writing is most ancient humans wrote something in the Sirani language, which archaeologists believe is the oldest writing in the world [11].

But the question arises whether the ancient writing written on the stone tablets preserved in the Ark of the Covenant which can be considered the oldest, is similar to the new ancient writing or is it different? As far as writing is concerned, there is a lot of information available in this regard, but the writing I am going to mention to you now is not thousands of years old, but millions of years old and how it was written, its writing style, can knowing all this be enough to change the current new era? Because of this style of writing, the Jews won thousands of wars, then lost it due to their ignorance and have been searching for it like madmen for centuries. Therefore, keeping in mind the ethics of research, I would request the readers that if they do not want to read anything about religion, then do not read that precede it. I think I would like to tell you about a piece of writing that might be the world's first piece of writing, along with the wall. Because it is a wall that was built only in the light of the purposes of all the modern and ancient aspects of the wall, engineering, and the necessity of creation, and this wall, encompasses all the purposes of the ancient and modern needs of the wall, is called the Wall of the Prophet Solomon. Going a little further, I will also mention a piece of writing from the perspective of the above-mentioned proverb and title so that nothing is left unsaid. As for the English idiom chosen for the title, well-known English writers have used this idiom for a few hundred years in various meanings, including finding, to save, to search, etc. But the author's choice of this idiom as the title of this article, although directly related to the wall and writing, has a completely new meaning that can hopefully be informative [12].

Aim/objective: In the article, the author has tried to explain that since the creation of AI is due to necessity, it cannot have the truth and depth that originality and origin require. Therefore, he has tried to explain that sometimes completely trivial things that are overlooked can be so important that only those who are capable of thinking like that can think about it, and there is still no explanation about it that can be based on it.

Findings/conclusion: The Kaaba is a sacred place for Muslims, which is predicted to be occupied near the Day of Judgment. It has been rebuilt many times despite many attacks and is among the oldest structures in the world. When it was rebuilt during the time of the last prophet, a piece of paper was found in the foundation stones, on which it was written: "I am Allah". No one knows who has it now, but understanding its writing and determining its sanctity is more important than the 10 Commandments and the dialogues, because it cannot be written by an angel. Tradition tells us that since the Arabs did not know Sirani language, they had to sought the Jews help and some of their scholars read it. Couldn't this writing of the wall be the most important?
